STM-DMin presents from 4 to 8 April 2016 (Mon. to Frid.)

The Church & mission

in the 21st century

Dr. Tan Kang San
Is the Executive Director for AsiaCMS. He was formerly Head of Mission Studies at Redcliffe College, UK and Research Director with OMF International. He is also a Consultant on Interfaith issues with Lausanne and World Evangelical Alliance. Dr. Tan has a DMin in Missiology from Trinity International University, USA, and is currently pursuing doctoral work in the theology of religions at Aberdeen University.

About the Course...

The future of Christianity, as many recognize, is in the ‘Global South’ that is South America, Africa and Asia. What is the mission of the local church in the world? How do pastors and lay leaders assess the effectiveness of Christian mission in Asian contexts? How can the church address contemporary challenges such as interfaith issues, social and political issues, migration, and discipleship in multi-faith contexts?

This course aims to help rediscover the role of the Church in Asia; to have a deeper understanding about missions, in all of its biblical, historical, cultural and strategic dimensions; and to evaluate how the local church can better equip, send and support workers in such complex situations. It will challenge the church to be an effective witness at home and work. Other issues to be considered are: why mission? (theology), and how mission? (strategies), and mutual learning from participants on current models of discipleship and mission churches.
