COURSE DESCRIPTION

The epistle to the Romans has been the most influential book in the Christian Church exercising a great influence on many who read it. In it, Paul expounds most systematically his Gospel. This course examines the social historical context, the purpose, literary structure, major themes, theological arguments and the syntax of the epistle. Students will have the practical experience of expounding a selected passage in class. The exercise is to enable students to move from preparing exegetical notes to applying their exegetical understanding for their sermons.
